The Issues and Controversies database is available through www.carlow.edu/library. Issues and Controversies combines objective analysis, clear explanations of opposing points of view and numerous special features, such as chronologies, illustrations, maps, tables, sidebars, bibliographies and contact information. Issues and Controversies coverage of events began in September 1995.

When to Use Issues and Controversies

- You are doing a speech or paper on a controversial or current topic.
- You are looking for statistics or graphs to incorporate into your research.
- You see something in the news and want a comprehensive explanation of all aspects of the issue.
- You are looking for ideas for a research paper or speech.

Searching Issues and Controversies

Once you have connected to the library’s web page click on the link for Find Articles, scroll down the page until you see the Current Events, History, Pro/Con Discussions subheading and then click on the link for Issues and Controversies.

Type your search term in the Search box and click on the Search button to run your search.

Your search results will be displayed and listed with the most relevant records first. Click on the record title to view the featured article on that topic or, check a box under article type to see other types of information about your search topic.
Subject Index

A list of all Issues and Controversies arranged by subject area can be found in the Subject Index box near the middle of the Issues and Controversies homepage.

If you wish to see an alphabetical listing of all topics covered in this database click on the ALL ISSUES A TO Z link from the Issues and Controversies homepage (near the middle of the page under recent controversies area).

Need a Research Topic?

If you are looking for ideas for a paper or speech, take a look at the Recent Controversies section towards the top of the Issues and Controversies homepage. These suggestions are issues currently in the news or often debated topics.

Accessing Issues and Controversies From Off Campus

If you would like to access Issues and Controversies from a computer that is not connected to the Carlow network, connect to www.carlow.edu/library and click on the Off Campus Access link that is located on the right hand side of the homepage.

Log into the system using your Active Directory username and password (the same username and password that you use to log into lab computers). Additional instructions are available on the off campus web page to help you to access library resources from off campus.
